As science becomes more global and complex, many research questions cannot be addressed without international collaboration between researchers from different sectors. For this reason, Québec and the Wallonia-Brussels Federation have developed a second Bilateral Research Program with the aim of creating a leverage effect for scientific excellence and bringing together researchers from the Wallonia-Brussels Federation and Québec to develop innovative joint research projects. These collaborations will allow major scientific breakthroughs, in the short and medium term, by combining and potentiating the strengths, expertise and structural levers of both countries, as well as by promoting the transfer of knowledge.

This Call for proposals is jointly conducted by:

- Fonds de la Recherche Scientifique - FNRS (F.R.S.-FNRS)
- Fonds de recherche du Québec – Nature et Technologies (FRQNT)
- Fonds de recherche du Québec – Santé (FRQS)
- Fonds de recherche du Québec – Société et Culture (FRQSC)

DEFINITIONS:

Intersectorality:

The Fonds de recherche du Québec (FRQ) means by intersectorality, or intersectoral mesh, a research and collaboration approach that brings together, on the same subject, problem, method or research question, researchers from disciplinary fields or research practices from at least two of the three major sectors covered by the FRQ: natural sciences and engineering (SNG), social sciences and humanities, arts and literature, and health.

Intersectoral research networking takes shape in:

- The joint design and development, within the project, of issues mobilizing questions or objects of common or shared research by representatives of different sectors
- The development of an innovative methodology, adapted to each problem and integrating approaches from each of the sectors represented in the project
- The composition of the teams: researchers from at least two sectors must carry the project

Principal Investigator and co-Investigator Status for Québec:

See the FRQ Common General Rules.

Early career researchers:

For the Fonds de recherche du Québec, a researcher at the beginning of his or her career is not a postdoctoral fellow. In summary, the Junior status has a maximal duration of 8 years and can start a maximum of 6 years after the end of the PhD.

Promoter and Co-promoter status for the Wallonia-Brussels Federation:

The lead promoter is the person in charge of the scientific responsibility as well as the administrative management of the funded research project.

In the event of collaboration between a promoter and a co-promoter, they must actively participate in the preparation and implementation of the project.

Collaborator:

A collaborator is a person who can participate in the project, but to whom no amount of the grant can be transferred. This person does not have to come from Québec or from the Wallonia-Brussels Federation.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

The project may be written either in French or English.¹

REMINDER for the Québec researchers

In addition to these program rules, it is the responsibility of those applying for funding to consult the Common General Rules (CGR) of the Fonds de recherche du Québec (FRQ), which apply to all FRQ programs. If special conditions apply to this program, they are described below and prevail over the CGR.

¹ In case the file is written in French, the F.R.S.-FNRS may request an English translation to the candidate for the purposes of the ex-ante evaluation.
